The man who promised to restore hope and bring change to America, has announced a plan to open five corporate plantations in the United States. On Thursday, President Barack Obama, whose policies have resulted in the greatest number of public sector job losses in US History (public sector jobs have declined by 718,000 jobs since Obama took office.) announced the opening of five "Promise Zones" located in San Antonio, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, southeastern Kentucky, and the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma.

"Under the proposed Promise Zones, the federal government plans to partner with local government and businesses to provide tax incentives and grants to help combat poverty." Combating poverty has nothing to do with it. Obama plans to shower the nation's biggest corporations-which recorded record profits in the last year and are presently sitting on more than $1.3 trillion in cash-with more lavish subsidies and tax breaks while providing an endless source of cheap slave labor to boost future earnings. The president believes that the wealth generated in these profit zones, er, promise zones will trickle down to the area's residents, even though it can be hard to tell whether a program's benefits reach the poorest people, rather than flowing largely into the hands of the business owners who get the tax credits.

Over the last few years, South Sudan has served as a testing ground for international engagement in so-called fragile states, an engagement which has too often followed textbook prescriptions and overlooked the political and social realities of the country, treating it instead as a technical exercise in state building.

Many in the aid sector in South Sudan have been operating on the assumption that greater development – improved services, infrastructure, access to food – would lead to stability and lasting peace. These assumptions were fundamentally challenged in Aiding the peace: a multi-donor evaluation of support to conflict prevention and peace-building activities in South Sudan 2005-2010 which found no evidence of the assumed causal link between the provision of basic services ("peace dividends") and a reduction in conflict.

This finding was controversial as it challenged the premise, upon which a great deal of assistance to southern Sudan has been based, "that the provision of socioeconomic services addresses needs, leading ultimately to the enhancement of state legitimacy and stabilisation."

The breezy Al Fresco is light yet expressive. It's a brush script that's perfect for packaging and titling work when the job calls for a youthful, delectable flair. Its elegance carries a subtle earthiness; its beauty is unconventional, stylish, and exuberant. Use the OpenType feature Titling for even more versatility. It serves up swash forms, contextual alternates, and ornaments to sweeten this tasty typeface.

Named after the typographic symbol used to mark the start of a paragraph, Pilcrow is a simple, utilitarian sans serif. It's available in two versions – straight-cornered and rounded - and its square-like letter forms are similar to those found on street and highway signs around the world - or on castmetal lettering for industrial products.

Brooklyn Samuels was recently extended to a five-weight family. Rounded inner and outer corners give the geometrical character shapes a friendly feel. Although it is primarily intended for headline use, stylistic sets offer text-friendly alternatives for some letters, yielding excellent legibility in small sizes.

Our upstream provider Kackspace has been conducting security audits for cloud hosting. As a precautionary measure, it has become necessary to reset Laughing Squid control panel/FTP passwords.

If you are suddenly unable to access the control panel and/or FTP for your hosting account, then your password was reset. Do not worry, your website has not been compromised. There are just a few clicks and some basic information required to enter and regain access.

Going forward, PLEASE USE STRONGER PASSWORDS. We have posted about strong passwords before. We strongly encourage using password management tools like 1password and Lastpass to help you store and use 12+ character count alphanumeric passwords that you don't need to remember that will tremendously improve the overall security of your digital footprint.

Like Bitcoin, There are numerous other cryptocurrency similar in nature, including MasterCoin, ProtoShares, Litecoin, Peercoin, BitBar and many more. One of them is Primecoin (sign: Q, code: XPM), a peer-to-peer open source cryptocurrency that implements a scientific computing proof-of-work system. Unlike Bitcoin or other virtual currencies, only Primecoin provides a proof of work that has intrinsic value. It generates a special form of prime number chains, known as 'Cunningham chains & bi-twin chains' based on a real world importance in mathematical research. Worldwide famous RSA Encryption basically uses two prime numbers for generating a RSA key pair. If you are able to factorise the public key and find these prime numbers, you will then be able to find the private key. Thus, the whole Security of RSA encryption is based on the length of prime numbers. So, Primecoin plays a great role for crypto researchers to get large... and a very large number of Primes.

Like other cryptocurrency miners, Primecoin miners are also available and in simple terms, just put your computer to work to find prime numbers chain and make money.After Bitcoin, the increasing public attention of other cryptocurrency did not go unnoticed by the Cyber criminals who have begun unleashing Primecoin mining malware.

Governments are power systems. They are trying to sustain their power and domination over their populations and they will use what means are available to do this. By now the means are very sophisticated and extensive and we can expect them to increase. So for instance, if your read technology journals you learn that in robotics labs for some years there have been efforts to develop small drones, what they call "fly-sized drones," which can intrude into a person's home and be almost invisible and carry out constant surveillance. You can be sure that the military is very much interested in this, and the intelligence systems as well, and will soon be using it.

We're developing technologies that will be used by our own governments and by commercial corporations and are already being used to maximize information for themselves for control and domination. That's the way power systems work. Of course, they've always played the security card. But I think one should be very cautious about such claims. Every government pleads security for almost anything it's doing, so since the plea is predictable it essentially carries no information. And after the event the power system claims security, that doesn't mean it's actually a functioning principle. And if you look at the record, you discover that security is generally a pre-text and security is not a high priority of governments. If by that I mean the security of the population -- security of the power system itself and the domestic interests it represents, yes, that's a concern. But security of the population is not.

Shin Yanagisawa was part of the outstanding generation of japanese photographers from the 1960s and 1970s. Shin Yanagisawa was born 1936, in Tokyo. He was part of the outstanding generation of japanese photographers from the 1960s and 1970s. This generation shaped our ideas and impressions with a new photographic view of contemporary japan as a country between tradition and the modern era even until today. After studying at the famous Tokyo College of Photography in Shibuya, Yanagisawa started working as a freelance photographer. He became engaged in subjects of the landscape and their changes, the roughness of nature and the urban reality of big cities. With his camera he bore down upon life itself, showed backstage-eroticism in a night club; and traced with his camera a winter love, of which we only can assume, was unique to him.

Paul G. Fox, 48, of Franklin, Ohio, was sentenced in U.S. District Court today to 144 months in prison for possession of more than 600 images of child pornography depicting children under 12 years old in sadistic and masochistic conduct.

Carter M. Stewart, United States Attorney for the Southern District of Ohio and Marlon Miller, Special Agent in Charge, Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), and members of the Greater Cincinnati Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force (ICAC) announced the sentence handed down today by Senior U.S. District Judge Sandra S. Beckwith.

Fox pleaded guilty on April 24, 2013, to one count of receipt of child pornography. According to court documents, HSI received a child exploitation referral from the Queensland Police in Australia regarding images posted on a Russian image board indicating the exchange of images of child exploitation, with information pointing to Fox.

HSI and Franklin Police obtained a search warrant for Fox's house on February 9, 2013, where they seized computer storage media and a computer. A forensic analysis of the computer by the Secret Service showed that Fox knowingly received multiple images and videos depicting violence or sadistic conduct. Fox possessed more than 600 images. Fox was arrested January 11, 2013, and has been in custody since his arrest.

After he completes his prison term, Fox will be under court supervision for the rest of his life. Under federal law, he must register as a sex offender anywhere he lives, works, or goes to school.

Are you interested in understanding how the US government collects intelligence? Do you want to help ensure that the US intelligence system is providing policymakers and analysts with the information they need to understand emerging crises, hard targets, and enduring national security threats? The CIA's Directorate of Intelligence (DI) is looking for creative candidates with strong interpersonal and communication skills to serve as intelligence collection analysts.

Collection Analysts apply their expertise on intelligence collection systems, capabilities, processes, and policies to inform intelligence consumers about collection developments and their effect on analysis through a range of written products and briefings. They collaborate with other analysts and collectors across the Intelligence Community (IC) to identify intelligence gaps and develop strategies to overcome collection challenges. Collection analysts provide insight that informs decisions on the acquisition and development of current and future collection systems by representing CIA interests in IC collection strategy forums, and may participate in sensitive collection programs designed to target the CIA's most difficult intelligence problems in innovative ways.

Agency analysts are encouraged to maintain and broaden professional ties through academic study, contacts, and attendance at professional meetings. They may also choose to pursue additional studies in fields relevant to their areas of responsibility. Training is provided for specialized tools and skill needs. Opportunities exist for foreign travel, language training, analytic and management training, and assignments in other offices in the Agency and throughout the US Government.

Minimum requirements include a bachelor's or master's degree in a variety of fields, such as political science, international studies, national security, history, geography library science, remote sensing, statistics, or a closely related discipline. A minimum GPA of 3.0 on a 4-point scale is required. Competitive candidates typically will have higher GPAs, relevant experience, and strong verbal presentation and writing skills, including the demonstrated ability to write clear and concise text. Excellent analytical and problem-solving skills, well-developed interpersonal skills, excellent briefing skills, and an ability to convey complex information in a clear, concise manner are also required. Analysts are expected to be comfortable using computers, because significant portions of their work employ complex databases. Intelligence collection experience is preferred--but not required--and military experience is valued. Foreign language capability is desired.

All applicants must successfully complete a thorough medical and psychological exam, a polygraph interview, and an extensive background investigation. US citizenship is required.

To be considered suitable for Agency employment, applicants must generally not have used illegal drugs within the last twelve months. The issue of illegal drug use prior to twelve months ago is carefully evaluated during the medical and security processing.

Important Notice: Friends, family, individuals, or organizations may be interested to learn that you are an applicant for or an employee of the CIA. Their interest, however, may not be benign or in your best interest. You cannot control whom they would tell. We therefore ask you to exercise discretion and good judgment in disclosing your interest in a position with the Agency. You will receive further guidance on this topic as you proceed through your CIA employment processing.

Americans live in a country lorded over by corporate and banking power. Our big business culture is accompanied by a pervasive and extraordinarily expensive military dominating the globe, ensuring our economic hegemony and protecting our interests. Meanwhile, there is a steady push to privatize as much of the public sector for private profit as achievable, especially in the education sphere.

David Arthur Rohm, 65, of Jackson, Tennessee, was sentenced yesterday to 87 months in federal prison following his guilty plea to one count of receipt of child pornography, announced U.S. Attorney Edward L. Stanton, III.

According to facts alleged in the indictment and revealed during the sentencing hearing, Rohm knowingly received DVDs that contained visual depictions of minor boys engaged in sexually explicit conduct.

In addition to the prison sentence, United States District Judge S. Thomas Anderson ordered Rohm to serve 10 years of supervised release and to forfeit all computers and media containing alleged child pornography. There is no parole in the federal prison system.

Prisoners say that their conditions of confinement are deplorable. According to prisoners, conditions in the High Security Unit include:

* severe isolation without any mental health evaluation or treatment; * unclean linens, rodent infestation and lack of any cleaning supplies to clean cells -- no disinfectants, no toilet brushes; * no written policies requiring the daily sweeping and mopping of the wings; * lack of heat in the cells and only one small, thin blanket; * showers are moldy and often cold; * no hot water in the cells to wash up or clean eating utensils; * unauthorized deviation from the statewide menu, low-calorie intake has prisoners losing weight; * not issued individual coats, have to share smelly coats with numerous men; * access to their legal materials limited to approximately once a month, delays in receiving legal mail; * no educational opportunities even though non-disciplinary prisoners should have the same access to education as the general population.

Over the coming weeks we will delve into the different aspects of working with the soil to produce the crops we put in your plates each week. As farmers we respond daily to the weather conditions of temperature and moisture: it guides the decision we make on how and when we work the soil, when we seed and transplant and then nurture by adding nutrients, weeding, trellising etc. The myriad crops we grow require constant monitoring and nurturing to the day of harvest with lots of setbacks from pests, weeds and weather conditions. Our work is unpredictable and constantly dynamic and while there are always challenges, the rewards of a successful harvest bring us great pride. Most importantly, the act of sharing our harvest with an engaged, supportive community is a huge privilege.

The Koch Brothers are the 6th and 7th wealthiest people IN THE WORLD, with a combined net worth of $72 billion.

Emboldened by the Citizens United disgrace, they are spending hundreds of millions of dollars - which is really only a pittance to them - to distort elections and install in office candidates who will do their bidding.

latory safeguards that protect us all.

There is nothing more infuriating and depressing in America than the "culture of mass incarceration" that has dominated the U.S. for decades. The result is a virtual gulag of people under the control of the fundamentally racist criminal justice system. Even though white people outnumber black people five to one in the U.S., and both groups use and sell drugs at similar rates, the latter make up 55 percent of those convicted for drug possession and 74 percent of those imprisoned for drug possession.

As most people who have passing familiarity with student debt in the U.S. know, it's a millstone that is brutally difficult to remove. But it turns out that even the limited ways out are often not available in practice thanks to the hyper-aggressive conduct of a critical government contractor.

Unlike every other type of obligation save child support and criminal penalties, it can't be discharged in bankruptcy. The lone type of exception is "undue hardship", when a borrower is so clearly incapable of ever paying that it's ridiculous to keep pressing them for the money.

The undue hardship standard is very difficult to meet, so one would think given how stringent it is, and therefore the comparatively small number of cases that are involved, that the student debt collectors would accept this minuscule level of losses and focus their resources on people with means.

Sharjah is the only Emirate in which alcohol is banned. It also maintains the strictest decency laws in the UAE, introduced in 2001, with a conservative dress code required for both men and women. Mixing between unmarried men and women is illegal: "A man and a woman who are not in a legally acceptable relationship should not, according to the booklet, be alone in public places, or in suspicious times or circumstances."

Sharjah under the oil-based economy of the United Arab Emirates and other Gulf state has become very devoted in establishing a keen art scene in the region. It was known to be the first in the Emirates to develop in 1987 but reached a saturation point when it incurred almost billion dollars in debt. Having survived the meltdown, Sharjah is now known as UNESCOs Cultural Capital of the Arab World heralded in 1998.

Here again we find another example of that vital though oftoverlooked principle: often, those labelled "criminals" by an unjust society are in fact its most noble actors.

Attn,

I feel quite safe reaching out to you as this important business. Though this medium (Internet) has been greatly abused, I choose to reach you through it because it still remains the fastest medium of communication. However, this correspondence is private, and it should be treated in strict confidence.

Firstly I will like to assure you that this transaction is 100% risk and trouble free to both parties, In order to transfer out fifteen million two hundred thousand dollars, (US$15.200 000 00) from our bank here, secondly the fund for transfers of clean origin. The owner of the fund is a foreigner, a program leader who was believed to have acquired the fund through his secret Crude Oil deals. The deceased died with all the members of his family in an auto accident without a WILL. Again the amount involved is US$15,200,000.00.

I want to transfer this money into your account as the foreign beneficiary of the fund. I know that this letter will come to you as a surprise as we don't know ourselves before, but be sure that it is real and a genuine business, I contact you believing that you will not let me down once the fund goes into your account.

Please Reply me if you are interested.

In one of her last Twitter posts, Venezuelan beauty queen Monica Spear wished her fans peace, health and love. The 29-year-old soap opera star was gunned down by the side of a country road less than a week later. Spear and her ex-husband, Thomas Henry Berry, were driving in Venezuela's Carabobo state Monday night when their car broke down, officials said. Armed robbers opened fire, killing both of them. Their 5-year-old daughter survived Monday's shooting, authorities said, but was shot in the leg.

Two antique American gold coins sold for more than $7.8 million when they went under the hammer in Florida, auction organizers confirmed Friday. The first gold coin ever made for the United States – a "Brasher Doubloon" struck in 1787 by a engineer of George Washington -- fetched $1,582,500. Heritage Auctions said. A nicked made at the Philadelphia Mint in 1913 that was once featured in an episode of the 1970s television show "Hawaii Five-O" raised $3.3 million. The coins were sold as part of a sale that has generated more than $55 million so far.

Heritage Auctions said. The legendary Brasher Doubloon is one of the most important coins in American history because it's the first gold coin struck for the young United States and it's one of only a handful that exist," said Todd Imhof, executive vice president of Heritage Auctions. The doubloon has been off the market since it was bought by a Chicago resident in 1979 for $430,000.

A Union County, New Jersey man today admitted distributing images of child sexual abuse over the Internet, U.S. Attorney Paul J. Fishman announced.

Andrew Johnson, 30, of Cranford, New Jersey, pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge Susan D. Wigenton in Newark federal court to an information charging him with one count of distribution of child pornography.

According to documents filed in the case and statements in court:

Johnson admitted that on December 7, 2012, he made available for others to download via an online peer-to-peer file sharing network images and videos of child pornography that were stored on his home computer. An undercover law enforcement agent successfully downloaded from Johnson one image and 14 videos of child pornography via the file sharing network.

As part of his guilty plea, Johnson agreed to forfeit the computers and computer accessories he used to commit the offense. He will also be required to register as a sex offender.

The count of distributing child pornography to which Johnson pleaded guilty carries a mandatory minimum penalty of five years in prison, a maximum potential penalty of 20 years in prison, and a $250,000 fine. Sentencing is currently scheduled for April 22, 2014.

Place spinach in a large, wide salad serving bowl. Scatter with mushrooms, red onion (see above for a different, yet lower way to add the onions) and coins of hard-boiled egg. In a large skillet, fry bacon bits over medium-high heat until theyre brown and crisp and have rendered their fat. Use a slotted spoon to scoop them out of the skillet and spread them over a piece of paper towel briefly before sprinkling them over the salad. Pour out all but two tablespoons of hot bacon fat from the skillet. Reheat over medium and quickly whisk in the red wine vinegar, honey and Dijon. Pour over entire salad and season salt and pepper.

Toss gently and serve hot. Repeat tomorrow night.

Imagine trying to disrupt pro football, America's most popular sport and a thriving billion-dollar business. League of Denial is a deep and meticulously investigated read, both fantastic and depressing, which exposes how the NFL denied and then consistently covered up overwhelming evidence that the basic everyday violence of football, especially in the brutal trenches of the NFL, causes irreparable brain damage.

The Fainaru brothers probe the increasing public health crisis, a huge problem, not only in the $10 billion NFL industry but in colleges, high school, and even in midget football where children are increasingly at risk. It is hard to come to grips with the fact that the most popular sport in history causes untold harm, and probably should be rethought and eventually eliminated.

Armin M was also a computer technician and until recently had a job with a software firm in the Rhine Valley city of Karlsruhe, 30 kilometers south of Rotenburg. He lived with his mother in the 17th-century half-timbered manor house, staying on there after her death.

"He was mama's boy," a neighbor later told reporters. "He was totally fixated on his mother, who he said never let him date girls. After she died, he began to thaw out."

After some initial pleasantries the couple got down to business. Armin cut off Bernd's penis, sauteed it and the two ate it. The proceedings were videotaped by Armin. Police who later watched the tape are, according to the press, now undergoing psychiatric counseling. "The victim appeared to be fully aware of the situation," one investigator has told the press. "Videotape material definitely shows both him and the suspect engaged in eating his own flesh prior to his death." The video also shows that the victim willingly allowed himself to be castrated before both men engaged in eating his severed flesh.

Then Armin M removed body parts for later enjoyment and buried the rest. Police found frozen human flesh and skeletal remains, and a cellar that had been renovated into a makeshift slaughterhouse, complete with trough drains and meat hooks.

The knock on effect of an unquestioning culture of compliance with the 'free market' is enormous. How ironic it is that the term 'free market' is attributed with so much value and (a presumed) logic when in actuality it constrains people's freedoms and makes those who are already rich even richer. Because the politicians are not effected by the results personally, and because it also serves their interests, they have handed over their social responsibilities to these market systems. The neoliberal defaults that caused the financial crisis are untouched by our democratic processes.

These out of reach, distant power systems are fixed towards property bias and occupy and govern our everyday experiences. How does freedom of expression fit into this and on whose terms?

Good Day,

I am Dr. Bright Ogu, of the newly inaugurated Committee in Central Bank Nigeria . My committee has a mandate to recover unpaid debts associated with NNPC contracts, Lottery fund, inheritance fund, loans and grants etc ranging from $24.5M owed to various beneficiaries and companies across the globe (Asia, Europe, USA, Africa, and Australia) and among the list of the unpaid beneficiaries/companies to the 2 appointed official paying Banks for immediate payment of the fund. With the accrued interest, the secretary interest will be disclosed to you when you confirm your data. In the course of our investigation, your email address/particulars were short listed among the first fifteen individuals yet to be paid hence this email. However, we received a petition today from one Mrs. Christina Morgan that you are dead. According to her, you died in a plane crash as such your fund should be paid to her as the apparent heir.She has also submitted her Bank account with Federal Reserve System for the transfer of the fund to her.To avoid undue delay or paying the fund to wrong individual/beneficiary, I have decided to contact you for confirmation. If I fail to hear from you after 72 hours, it will be assumed that the petition of Mrs. Morgan is true and the fund will be paid to her without further delay. Therefore, if you are still alive, reconfirm your particulars, (1) Your full name. (2) Phone, fax and mobile #. 3) company's name, position and address. 4) Profession, age and marital status. 5) Copy of int'l passport or any scanned identity to prove yourself. I am deeply sorry for the accident, sorry please. Please confirm receipt of this information for record purposes and contact your bank for actualization of transfer (Transfer Validity 48hrs)

Congratulations & Thanks.

Graphic Masterpieces from a Private Collection on January 28, 2014. Featuring 35 important examples the sale encompasses a survey of his graphic output work, containing imagery which sheds light on the tumultuous times in which he Goya lived. One of the highlights of the sale is an early example of Los Caprichos, a complete set of eighty etchings first published in 1799. These prints exposed the corruption that earned Goya's homeland the appellation Black Spain. Here, Goya mocks the peasantry's superstitious belief in witchcraft, the arrogance of the nobility, and the widespread corruption of the Catholic Church. It offers a kaleidoscope view of evil, encompassing prostitutes, imagined witches and goblins. In order to protect himself from the wrath of the Inquisition, Goya masked his satire by means of images that could inspire.

Good Day

I must first tender an apology for this unsolicited mail to you. I am conscious that this is certainly not a proper manner of approach to foster a relationship of trust but because of the circumstances and urgency surrounding this venture I decided to reach you via this medium to join me put claims on this fund before it is seized or confiscated by the authorities. I got your contact information through the public records while searching for a similar name to our late client, a Business Magnate that lived in Spain for Nineteen years but died with his family during the TSUNAMI in INDONESIA and BALI that occurred in December 2004. Do not be amazed by this letter, I am contacting you based on Trust and confidentiality attached to this transaction.

Before the catastrophe, the sum of $18.4M (EIGHTEEN MILLION, FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND US DOLLARS) was deposited in our bank and as the Auditor General of the Bank, the Board of Directors mandated me to present a member of the family (heir/inherton) to make claims or the funds will be confiscated and taken to the Bureau as unclaimed. I was given an ultimatum to look for a relative to come for the claim or have the funds liquidated by the Spanish Government and made unserviceable in accordance with existing Spanish law in [ARTICULE 184B].

After preliminary efforts of search for a direct family member which came to no avail, I decided to contact you. My suggestion is that I will like to present you as the beneficiary to this fund, I know you may not be anywhere related to my late client but there is a possibility that the fund will be released to you. I guarantee that if you are willing and interested, I will put all in place in accordance with the Law to legally present you as the Next of Kin and true beneficiary.

This transaction is 100% risk free as I have worked all out to complete the operation effectively and once this fund is released to you, it will be shared in the ratio of 40% for you, and 60% for me as our benefit which is ($74 Million for you) and ($41.04 Million for me). Kindly indicate your interest by mail to: smith1964@gmail.com for more information. Please endeavour to get back to me whether you are willing to collaborate with me or not so that I can further my search for another partner.

I wait for your prompt response.

Kindest Regards, Mike Smith.

Michael C. Ormsby, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Washington, announced that Sky Steven Bennett, age 34, of Richland, Washington, was sentenced on January 13, 2014, after having previously pleaded guilty on October 22, 2013 to receipt of child pornography. United States District Court Judge Wm. Fremming Nielsen sentenced Bennett to a five-year term of imprisonment, to be followed by a 20-year term of court supervision after he is released from federal prison. In addition, Bennett was ordered to forfeit to the United States the computer equipment and digital media used to receive and store his child pornography collection.

According to information disclosed during the court proceedings, in August of 2012, the Columbia Energy and Environmental Services (CEES) Human Resource Department conducted an internal investigation of Bennett related to child pornography. The CEES referred their investigation to the Richland Police Department. The Richland Police Department, in partnership with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, conducted further investigation of Bennett and, on August 22, 2012, a search warrant was executed at Bennett's residence. Law enforcement discovered an extensive collection of child pornography at Bennett's residence. A forensic examiner determined that Bennett began receiving child pornography in 2000 and continued to do so until his residence was searched in August of 2012.

Michael C. Ormsby stated, "I commend the collaborative work of the Richland Police Department and Federal Bureau of Investigation in this case. The United States Attorney's Office in the Eastern District of Washington is, and will continue to be, committed to prosecuting aggressively and seeking appropriate punishmentfor child pornography crimes. Prosecuting offenders who are collecting child pornography is a priority of the United States Attorney's Office."

After several years of discussion, we have decided to add a market-style CSA option at the farm stand (traditional drop site options are still available). Every Wednesday, an assortment of fruits and vegetables is set up, and members pack their own share, choosing between a set number of items. A greater diversity of produce will be available than what is typically found in a traditional CSA share, with members being able to take what they love, and leave what they don't. Staples, like kale, and abundant seasonal items, like tomatoes, will almost always be available as choices when in season. A market-style CSA provides much greater flexibility and is designed for those members who want more choice in what goes into their share each week. If there is a week that you're unable to come during the packing window, we can assume your share for you.

This is in regard to outstanding payment, I am Mr.

James Scott, the Newly appointed Director United Nation Legal Affairs, Security and Investigation, the Government of the United Kingdom, the Executive Arms of the Government, has directed me to Investigate your Fund and to make sure that we approve all outstanding debts owned to Foreign Beneficiaries by the government of Great Britain in this 1st quarter of this Fiscal year 2014.

This decision was taken based on the abnormities and inability of the BANKS in Malaysia to Release your fund into your bank account whereby it was discovered that some Directors in different banks were diverting foreign beneficiaries payment to another account of their choice overseas. In view of this, during our investigation I found out that an account was submitted to divert your fund to a Germany account. Below is the account submitted and I want you to confirm if you are aware of the new development because we are about effecting payment to the account stated bellow today.

Beneficiary: CERSTIN WENGER SHENOUDA Bank: FRANKFURTER BANK A/C No.: 367840545 Code: 50050201

Finally, be informed that a payment instruction has been issued and Forwarded to the Treasury Department of the Government of Great Britain In favor of you and your company for immediate release of your fund to the account above without any further prejudice. But there is no way We can approve the fund to your account without confirming if you Have changed your account for your fund to be transfer to the Beneficiary: CERSTIN WENGER SHENOUDA BANK ACCOUNT IN GERMANY.

Contact me immediately for further clarification to know if you have Giving instruction to transfer your fund to the above account today. On behalf Of the entire management of United Nations, we are congratulating you in advance and if you fail to contact this office on or before 24hrs from now then we will now wire the fund to the German account.

Thanks for your co-operation. Waiting for your urgent response Yours faithfully. Mr.James Scott

Dear Beneficiary,

We are not sure you received our previous message but we wish to us this medium to officialy inform you that following the ongoing review of all unclaimed and delayed funds by the United Nations/international Monetary Fund (UN/IMF) and the World Bank, your payment file was forwarded to our office for immediate payment of your long delayed funds starting with a first transfer of US$5,000,000.00 with reference No. NG/FM-93WA, to your payment file. However, we are surprised to receive another application this morning from your representative, MR.HANS STEINBICHLER,stating that you authorized him to transfer the funds to another bank account in Switzerland and that you were recently involved in an auto accident and cannot walk right now. Could you please confirm immediately, your relationship with MR.HANS STEINBICHLER and also, confirm if the bank account in Switzerland as shown below is now your new bank account information to receive your funds this week from our paying bank

We can wrest back control of our economy, and finally our political system, from corporate speculators only by building local movements that decentralize economic power through the creation of hundreds of publicly owned state, county and city banks.

Money, as Karl Marx lamented, plays the largest part in determining the course of history. Once speculators are able to concentrate wealth into their hands they have, throughout history, emasculated government, turned the press into lap dogs and courtiers, corrupted the courts and hollowed out public institutions, including universities, to justify their looting and greed. Today's speculators have created grotesque financial mechanisms, from usurious interest rates on loans to legalized accounting fraud, to plunge the masses into crippling forms of debt peonage. They steal staggering sums of public funds, such as the $85 billion of mortgage-backed securities and bonds, many of them toxic, that they unload each month on the Federal Reserve in return for cash. And when the public attempts to finance public-works projects they extract billions of dollars through wildly inflated interest rates.

Speculators at megabanks or investment firms such as Goldman Sachs are not, in a strict sense, capitalists. They do not make money from the means of production. Rather, they ignore or rewrite the law – ostensibly put in place to protect the vulnerable from the powerful – to steal from everyone, including their shareholders. They are parasites. They feed off the carcass of industrial capitalism. They produce nothing. They make nothing. They just manipulate money. Speculation in the 17th century was a crime. Speculators were hanged.

The question of engagement is not singular to the art world, as activists and peers continue to grapple with it in the wake of the post-Occupy challenges. Just as activits have reclaimed and organized squares, parks and streets for a life-changing experience, so cultural workers have occupied cultural spaces, have disrupted the business cycles of galleries and auction houses, and have organized alternative schools and conscious-raising workshops. Nonetheless, we all share the frustration that all this is ephemeral, temporary, that as we participate in something magical together, it inevitably comes to an end. While we have been successful at transforming small spaces for short periods of time, there is still much work to do in the way of a long-lasting and depth-reaching transformation of culture and society.

Statistically, there is always a percentage of the forum posters who are more inclined to violence. In order to determine who these individuals are, it is a requirement to present a image to the forum to deliberately incite a strong psychological reaction. From this the most violent in the group can be effectively singled out for reverse IP location and possibly local enforcement tracking. To accomplish this one requires posting a link to a video depicting a local police officer massively abusing his power against a very innocent individual. Statistically of the million or so police officers in America there is always one or two being caught abusing there powers and the taping of the activity can be then used for intelligence gathering purposes - without the requirement to 'stage' a fake abuse video. This method is extremely effective, and the more so the more abusive the video can be made to look. It is essential to 'lead' the forum by replying to your own posting with your own statement of violent intent, and that you 'do not care what the authorities think!!' inflammation. By doing this and showing no fear it may be more effective in getting the more silent and self-disciplined violent intent members of the forum to slip and post their real intentions. This can be used later in a court of law during prosecution.

Dear Beneficiary,

I hope that this correspondence is received with the urgency and the expediency required. It has come to the notice of the Board of Trustees at the CBN that your present inheritance claims application being handled by the Remitting Bank in Nigeria is experiencing some man made irregularities. To this effect, it has become necessary for the Board of Trustees to invite trained Fund Transfer / Assets transfer Specialists from the United States to resolve and regularize your fund release with immediate effect and stop all further fund discrepancies.

We at Howard & Associates have been duly consulted by the CBN Board of Trustees and have been fully informed about how the staff of the remitting bank have been taking advantage of you by telling you to pay unnecessary exorbitant charges which will only make your fund payment a long drawn-out process. Due to this we have decided to step into the process of your fund transfer to enable your funds to be transferred within the soonest possible time without needing to pay all the huge sums of monies that are being demanded from you by the remitting bank, you are to get back to us immediately.

All processes to have your funds paid to you immediately through the Raiffeisen Bank in Switzerland have been initiated to cut out unnecessary costs. You are advised to keep this communication highly confidential as the CBN Board of Trustees have asked us to resolve this fund payment independent of the office of the CBN Governor to identify the the principal participants in this unethical payment procedure. Furthermore you are hereby advised to pay no further fees or charges to the Remitting Bank in Nigeria as well as any person or persons, Real or Fictitious, prostates and institutions as they shall no longer be handling your payment process.

We shall await your immediate correspondence with your direct telephone numbers so that we may conclude your payment immediately contact the claim officier through this emailaddress: andyojeh8@gmail.com or ATMICEN@consultant.com

Yours Faithfully,

The extended essay, Digital Solidarity, responds to the wave of new forms of networked organization emerging from and colliding with the global economic crisis of 2008. Across the globe, voluntary association, participatory decision-making and the sharing of resources, all widely adopted online, are being translated into new forms of social space. This movement operates in the breach between accelerating technical innovation, on the one hand, and the crises of institutions which organise, or increasingly restrain society on the other. Through an inventory of social forms -- commons, assemblies, swarms and weak networks -- the essay outlines how far we have already left McLuhan's "Gutenberg Galaxy" behind. In this cautiously optimistic account, we are reminded that the struggles over where we will arrive are only just beginning.

The first photographs taken of the crime scene were taken by a regularly published freelance photographer, Pedro Polakoff. He repeatedly called the police to give them those photographs, but the cops never responded. Polakoff assumed that Mumia was guilty and forgot about the issue. In 2006 these photographs were discovered and studied by Dr. Michael Schiffman of Heidelberg University in Germany. The photos disprove the prosecution's entire case theory. They also show that the police lied and tampered with evidence. Officer James Forbes, who testified in court that he had properly handled the guns allegedly retrieved at the crime scene, is photographed holding the guns with his bare hands, destroying all potentially significant fingerprints. Most importantly, the Polakoff photos also point to the presence of a fourth person at the crime scene. Officer Faulkner's hat is pictured resting on top of the Volkswagen on the side of the passenger-seat, suggesting that he may have had a conversation with the passenger.

Exonerating evidence abounds in the case of Mumia Abu-Jamal. Because Mumia is known the world-over for his commentaries and writings on inequality and because he has spent so much of his time in prison offering a radical critique and analysis of mass incarceration, a victory in Mumia's case would open up a much larger conversation in the mainstream about the crisis of mass and political imprisonment in the US.

The Private Collection of Jan Krugier. A survivor of the Holocaust, the legendary art dealer perhaps best known for his involvement with the work of Picasso walked through life believing in the redemptive potential of art. Together with his wife, Marie-Anne Krugier-Poniatowski, he amassed one of the world's most spectacular collections of works on paper through which he was able to connect particularly closely with the artists he admired the most. As he described it: Marie-Anne and I began gathering works on paper by artists of all periods, with their common denominator being an intrinsic timeless quality, a same universal, unique approach to the world and to things. It is also, somehow, an inner voyage.

Tammy Dickinson, United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, announced that a former member of the Sarcoxie, Missouri school board pleaded guilty in federal court today to possessing child pornography.

John R. Lewis, 68, of Sarcoxie, pleaded guilty before U.S. Magistrate Judge David P. Rush to the charge contained in a Feb. 28, 2014, federal indictment.

According to court documents, Missouri State Highway Patrol troopers contacted Lewis as part of their investigation into allegations that he had exposed himself to a group of high school students who were working for Lewis on his farm outside of Sarcoxie. The troopers obtained a search warrant for Lewis' residence and seized two desktop computers, a laptop computer, and electronic storage devices.

Investigators determined that the computers contained 19 multimedia files of child pornography and 113 images of suspected child pornography. The multimedia files and images depicted children as young as 5 years old.

Under the terms of today's plea agreement, Lewis will be sentenced to two years in federal prison without parole followed by 10 years of supervised release. A sentencing hearing will be scheduled after the completion of a presentence investigation by the United States Probation Office.

This case is being prosecuted by Supervisory Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael A. S. Oliver. It was investigated by the Missouri State Highway Patrol, the Southwest Missouri Cyber Crimes Task Force and the FBI.

Sparrows can be a challenging group of birds to learn to identify, since at first they all seem to be little brown streaky birds." However, they are much cuter than gulls, and show interesting social behaviors within flocks, as you start to watch them closely. No matter where you go in Oregon, you can always find a few sparrows to watch.

When publisher Conde Nast cancelled its internship programs in October 2013, the response was mixed: many cheered the end of a program that asked debt-laden youth to labour for free, while others lamented the closure of one of the only routes into media work. When depicted in the mainstream media, internships are surrounded by an aura of glamour: rapper Kanye West did a stint at luxury designer Fendi, Lady Gaga arranged one at designer Philip Treacy, and Hollywood portrayed the phenomenon in the movie The Internship. The gloss is fading, however: digital electronic manufacturer Foxconn was caught employing student interns on dubious terms on its assembly lines; former interns launched a successful class-action suit against Fox Searchlight Pictures; and Ross Perlin's Intern Nation: How to Earn Nothing and Learn Little in the Brave New Economy (Verso, 2011) was vital in pushing internships into a critical spotlight internationally. Within just a few years, internships have become a high-profile subject, garnering media attention, catalyzing activism, provoking government action, and sparking lawsuits against massive corporations.

Twenty-Five Rules of Disinformation Note: The first rule and last five (or six, depending on situation) rules are generally not directly within the ability of the traditional disinfo artist to apply. These rules are generally used more directly by those at the leadership, key players, or planning level of the criminal conspiracy or conspiracy to cover up. Hear no evil, see no evil, speak no evil. Regardless of what you know, don't discuss it -- especially if you are a public figure, news anchor, etc. If it's not reported, it didn't happen, and you never have to deal with the issues. 2. Become incredulous and indignant. Avoid discussing key issues and instead focus on side issues which can be used show the topic as being critical of some other, likewise sacrosanct group or theme. This is also known as the 'How dare you!' gambit. 3. Create rumor mongers. Avoid discussing issues by describing all charges, regardless of venue or evidence, as mere rumors and wild accusations. Other derogatory terms mutually exclusive of truth may work as well. This method which works especially well with a silent press, because the only way the public can learn of the facts are through such 'arguable rumors'. If you can associate the material with the Internet, use this fact to certify it a 'wild rumor' from a 'bunch of kids on the Internet' which can have no basis in fact. 4. Use a straw man. Find or create a seeming element of your opponent's argument which you can easily knock down to make yourself look good and the opponent to look bad. Either make up an issue you may safely imply exists based on your interpretation of the opponent/opponent arguments/situation, or select the weakest aspect of the weakest charges. Amplify their significance and destroy them in a way which appears to debunk all the charges, real and fabricated alike, while actually avoiding discussion of the real issues. 5. Sidetrack opponents with name calling and ridicule. This is also known as the primary 'attack the messenger' ploy, though other methods qualify as variants of that approach. Associate opponents with unpopular titles such as 'kooks', 'right-wing', 'liberal', 'leftwing', 'terrorists', 'conspiracy buffs', 'radicals', 'militia', 'racists', 'religious fanatics', 'sexual deviates', and so forth. This makes others shrink from support out of fear of gaining the same label, and you avoid dealing with issues. 6. Hit and Run. In any public forum, make a brief attack of your opponent or the opponent position and then scamper off before an answer can be fickled, or simply ignore any answer. This works extremely well in Internet and letters-to-the-editor environments where a steady stream of new identities can be called upon without having to explain criticism, reasoning -- simply make an accusation or other attack, never discussing issues, and never answering any subsequent response, for that would play into the opponent's viewpoint. 7. Question motives. Twist or amplify any fact which could be taken to imply that the opponent operates out of a hidden personal agenda or other bias. This avoids discussing issues and forces the accuser on the defensive. 8. Invoke authority. Claim for yourself or associate yourself with authority and present your argument with enough 'jargon and 'minutia' to illustrate you are 'one who knows', and simply say it isn't so without discussing issues or demonstrating concretely why or citing sources. 9. Play Dumb. No matter what evidence or logical argument is offered, avoid discussing issues except with denials they have any credibility, make any sense, provide any proof, contain or make a point, have logic, or support a conclusion. Mix well for maximum effect. 10. Associate opponent charges with old news. A derivative of the straw man – usually, in any large-scale matter of high visibility, someone will make charges early on which can be or were already easily dealt with – a kind of investment for the future should the matter not be so easily contained.) Where it can be foreseen, have your own side raise a straw man issue and have it dealt with early on as part of the initial contingency plans. Subsequent charges, regardless of validity or newground unconcerned, can usually then be associated with the original charge and dismissed as simply being a rehash without need to address current issues -- so much the better when the opponent is often involved with the original source.

11. Establish and rely upon fall-back positions. Using a minor matter or element of the facts, take the 'high road' and 'confess' with candor that some innocent mistake, in hindsight, was made – but that opponents have seized on the opportunity to blow it all out of proportion and imply greater criminalities which, 'just isn't so.' Others can reinforce this on your behalf, later, and even publicly 'call for an end to the nonsense' because you have already 'done the right thing.' Done properly, this can garner sympathy and respect for 'coming clean' and 'owning up' to your mistakes without addressing more serious issues. 12. Enigmas have no solution. Drawing upon the overall umbrella of events surrounding the crime and the multitude of players and events, paint the entire affair as too complex to solve. This causes those otherwise following the matter to begin to lose interest more quickly without having to address the actual issues. 13. Alice in Wonderland Logic. Avoid discussion of the issues by reasoning backwards or with an apparent deductive logic which forbears any actual material fact. 14. Demand complete solutions. Avoid the issues by requiring opponents to solve the crime at hand completely, a ploy which works best with issues qualifying for rule 10. 15. Fit the facts to alternate conclusions. This requires creative thinking unless the crime was planned with contingency conclusions in place. 16. Vanish evidence and witnesses. If it does not exist, it is not fact, and you won't have to address the issue. 17. Change the subject. Usually in connection with one of the other ploys listed here, find a way to side-track the discussion with abrasive or controversial comments in hopes of turning attention to a new, more manageable topic. This works especially well with companions who can 'argue' with you over the new topic and polarize the discussion arena in order to avoid discussing more key issues. 18. Emotionalize, Antagonize, and Goad Opponents. If you can't do anything else, chide and taunt your opponents and draw them into emotional responses which will tend to make them look foolish and overly motivated, and generally render their material somewhat less coherent. Not only will you avoid discussing the issues in the first instance, but even if their emotional response addresses the issue, you can further avoid the issues by then focusing on how 'sensitive' they are to criticism.' 19. Ignore proof presented, demand impossible proofs. This is perhaps a variant of the 'play dumb' rule. Regardless of what material may be presented by an opponent in public forums, claim the material irrelevant and demand proof that is impossible for the opponent to come by (it may exist, but not be at his disposal, or it may be something which is known to be safely destroyed or withheld, such as a murder weapon.) In order to completely avoid discussing issues, it may be required that you to categorically deny and be critical of media or books as valid aggravating and worsening drought conditions especially in southern California. Santa Ana winds there will continue and likely intensify early next week keeping the wildfire threat high.

Dear friend,

Greetings to you and your family, I am the manager of bill and exchange in THE BANK, I have a business of 3.5 Million United State Dollars to be transfer to your account for investment in your country, if you are ready to assist me get back to me, I will give you full details on how the fund will be transfer to you.

Be rest assured that everything will be handled confidentially because, this is a great opportunity we cannot afford to miss, as it will make our family profit a lot.

It has been 6 years ago, that most of the greedy African Politicians used our bank to launder money overseas through the help of their Political advisers.

Most of the funds which they transferred out of the shores of Africa were gold and oil money that was supposed to have been used to develop the continent.

The Political advisers always inflated the amounts before transfer to foreign accounts so I also used the opportunity to divert part of the fund worth five million five hundred united state dollars I told you about and I am aware that there is no official trace of how much was transferred as all the accounts used for such transfers of fund at that particle time were closed after transfer.

I am the account officer to most of the politicians and when I discovered that they were using me to succeed in their greedy act, I also cleaned some of their banking records from the Bank files and no one cared to ask me of the money was too much for them to control, as I am sending this message to you, I was able to divert the point five Millions Dollars ($5.5M)which is in an escrow transit account belonging to no one in the bank, and now my bank is very anxious to know the real beneficiary of the funds is for they have made a lot of profits with the fund.

It has been more than five years ago and most of the politicians are no longer in power again and they dont use our bank to transfer funds overseas anymore since their tenure had expired.

The $5.5 Million United State Dollars has been lying in the bank as unclaimed fund and I will soon retire from the bank immediately the fund transfer into your account over there.

Immediately the fund has been successfully transfer into our account I come to your country for the sharing of the fund, the fund will be shared 50% for me and 40% for you, and the other 10% for the expenchanges home and poor with less-privilege people.

Please know that there is no one that is going to question you about the fund if you will comply with me and follow my instruction which will help us a lot to achieve this goal for everything is well secured.

Please if you are interested in this transaction and you wish to get my next reply concerning this transaction then you must not fail to contact me through my private email address: (julianttraore@sify.com) and without you replying me via this email address(julianttraore@sify.com) I am very sorry to say that you will not get any further communication from me again, so therefore I will appreciate you write me on this address(julianttraore@sify.com) for further explanation. Waiting to hear from you soon. Yours Faithfully, Mrs. Julian Traore

We are currently building a small team of interns to help with several museum and public projects in Southern California in the first 1/2 of 2014. We are looking for an outgoing team of committed young cultural innovators with leadership skills to become our project development team. Candidates should have an interest in contemporary art and a desire to learn about civic projects and public participation.

Strong communication skills are essential, along with an attention to detail, the ability to complete projects on time and a willingness to interact with the public during events within diverse communities. Candidates should be current students or recent graduates with their own transportation, cellphones, etc. These internships will include a variety of responsibilities including site-visits for upcoming project development, coordinating with lead contacts at host venues, co-producing public participatory projects, assistance during installation, and publicity for print, broadcast and online, and perhaps more. Basic responsibilities may also include organization skills, research in historical archives, as well as other day-to-day administrative duties.

The coldest temperatures in almost two decades will spread into the northern and central U.S. today behind an arctic cold front. Combined with gusty winds, these temperatures will result in life-threatening wind chill values as low as 60 degrees below zero. Also, heavy snow will develop from the eastern Plains to the Great Lakes today, with up to a foot of accumulation possible.

Eight Traits of the Disinformationalist 1) Avoidance. They never actually discuss issues head-on or provide constructive input, generally avoiding citation of references or credentials. Rather, they merely imply this, that, and the other. Virtually everything about their presentation implies their authority and expert knowledge in the matter without any further justification for credibility. 2) Selectivity. They tend to pick and choose opponents carefully, either applying the hit-and-run approach against mere commentators supportive of opponents, or focusing heavier attacks on key opponents who are known to directly address issues. Should a commentator become argumentative with any success, the focus will shift to include the commentator as well. 3) Coincidental. They tend to surface suddenly and somewhat coincidentally with a new controversial topic with no clear prior record of participation in general discussions in the particular public arena involved. They likewise tend to vanish once the topic is no longer of general concern. They were likely directed or elected to be there for a reason, and vanish with the reason. 4) Teamwork. They tend to operate in self-congratulatory and complementary packs or teams. Of course, this can happen naturally in any public forum, but there will likely be an ongoing pattern of frequent exchanges of this sort where professionals are involved. Sometimes one of the players will infiltrate the opponent camp to become a source for straw man or other tactics designed to dilute opponent presentation strength. 5) Anti-conspiratorial. They almost always have disdain for 'conspiracy theorists' and, usually, for those who in any way believe JFK was not killed by LHO. Ask yourself why, if they hold such disdain for conspiracy theorists, do they focus on defending a single topic discussed in a NG focusing on conspiracies? One might think they would either be trying to make fools of everyone on every topic, or simply ignore the group they hold in such disdain.Or, one might more rightly conclude they have an ulterior motive for their actions in going out of their way to focus as they do. 6) Artificial Emotions. An odd kind of 'artificial' emotionalism and an unusually thick skin -- an ability to persevere and ignore even in the face of overwhelming criticism and unacceptance. This likely stems from intelligence community training that, no matter how condemning the evidence, deny everything, and never become emotionally involved or reactive. The net result for a disinfo artist is that emotions can seem artificial. Most people, if responding in anger, for instance, will express their animosity throughout their rebuttal. But disinfo types usually have trouble maintaining the 'image' and are hot and cold with respect to pretended emotions and their usually more calm or unemotional communications style. It's just a job, and they often seem unable to 'act them' role in character as well in a communications medium as they might be able in a real face-to-face conversation/confrontation. You might have outright rage and indignation one moment, bonhum the next, and more anger later -- an emotional yo-yo. With respect to being thick-skinned, no amount of valid criticism will deter them from doing their job, and they will generally continue their old disinfo patterns without any adjustments to criticisms of how obvious it is that they play that game where a more rational individual who truly cares what others think might seek to improve their communications style, substance, and so forth, or simply give up. 7) Inconsistent. There is also a tendency to make mistakes which betray their true self/motives. This may stem from not really knowing their topic, or it may be somewhat 'freudian', so to speak, in that perhaps they really root for the side of truth deep within. I have noted that often, they will simply cite contradictory information which neutralizes itself and the author. For instance, one such player claimed to be a Navy pilot, but blamed his poor communicating skills (spelling, grammar, incoherent style) on having only a grade-school education. Im not aware of too many Navy pilots who don't have a college degree. On another claimed no knowledge of a particular topic/situation but later claimed first-hand knowledge of it. 8) Time Constant. Recently discovered, with respect to News Groups, is the response time factor. There are three ways this can also be seen to work, especially when the government or other empowered player is involved in a cover up operation: a) ANY NG posting by a targeted proponent for truth can result in an IMMEDIATE response. The government and other empowered players can afford to pay people to sit there and watch for an opportunity to do some damage. SINCE DISINFO IN ANGONLYWORKS IF THE READER SEES IT - FAST RE-SPONSE IS CALLED FOR, or the visitor may be swayed towards truth. b) When dealing in more direct ways with a disinformationalist, such as email, DELAY IS CALLED FOR – there will usually be a minimum of a 48-72 hour delay. This allows a sit-down team discussion on response strategy for best effect, and even enough time to let permissions or instruction from a formal chain of command, et) In the NG example 1) above, it will often ALSO be seen that bigger guns are drawn and fired after the same 48-72 hours delay - the team approach in play. This is especially true when the targeted truth seeker or their comments are considered more important with respect to potential to reveal truth. Thus, a serious truth sayer will be attacked twice for the same sin. Seventeen Techniques for Truth Suppression Strong, credible allegations of high-level criminal activity can bring down a government. When the government feels an effective, fact-based defense, other techniques must be employed. The success of these techniques depends heavily upon a cooperative, compliant press and a mere token opposition party. 1. Dummy up. If it's not reported, it's not news, it didn't happen. 2. Wax indignant. This is also known as the "How dare you?" gambit. 3. Characterize the charges as "rumors" or, better yet, "wild rumors." If, in spite of the news blackout, the public is still able to learn about the suspicious facts, it can only be through "rumors." (If they tend to believe the "rumors" it must be because they are simply "paranoid" or "hysterical.") 4. Knock down straw men. Deal only with the weakest aspects of the weakest charges. Even better, create your own straw men. Make up wild rumors (or plant false stories) and give them lead play when you appear to debunk all the charges, real and fanciful alike. 5. Call the skeptics names like "conspiracy theorist," "nutcase," "ranter," "kook," "crackpot," and, of course, "rumor monger." Be sure, too, to use heavily loaded verbs and adjectives when characterizing their charges and defending the "more reasonable" government and its defenders. You must then carefully avoid fair and open debate with any of the people you have thus maligned. For instance, set up your own "skeptics" to shoot down. 6. Impugn motives. Attempt to marginalize the critics by suggesting strongly that they are not really interested in the truth but are simply pursuing a partisan political agenda or are out to make money (compared to over-compensated advertisers to the government line who, presumably, are not). 7. Invoke authority. Here the controlled press and the sham opposition can be very useful. 8. Dismiss the charges as "old news." 9. Come half-clean. This is also known as "confession and avoidance" or "taking the limited hangout route." This way, you create the impression of candor and honesty while you admit only to relatively harmless, but non-criminal "mistakes." This stratagem often requires the embrace of a fall-back position quite different from the one originally taken. With effective damage control, the fall-back position need only be peddled by stooge skeptics to carefully limited markets. 10. Characterize the crimes as impossibly complex and the truth as ultimately unknowable. 11. Reason backward, using the deductive method with a vengeance. With thoroughly rigorous deduction, troublesome evidence is irrelevant. E.g. We have a completely free press. If evidence exists that the Vince Foster "suicide" note was forged, they would have reported it. They haven't reported it so there is no such evidence. Another variation on this theme involves the likelihood of a conspiracy leaker and a press who would report the leak. Require the skeptics to solve the crime completely. E.g. If Foster was murdered, who did it and why? 13. Change the subject. This technique includes creating distractions and publicizing distractions. 14. Lightly report incriminating facts, and then make nothing of them. This is sometimes referred to as "bump and run" reporting. 15. Baldly and brazenly lie. A favorite way of doing this is to attribute the "facts" furnished the public to a plausible-sounding, but anonymous, source. 16. Expanding further on numbers 4 and 5, have your own stooges "expose" scandals and champion popular causes. Their job is to pre-empt real opponents and to play 99-yard football. A variation is to pay rich people for the job and pretend to spend their own money. 17. Flood the Internet with agents. This is the answer to the question, "What could possibly motivate a person to spend hour upon hour on Internet news groups defending the government and/or the press and harassing genuine critics?" Don t the authorities have defenders enough in all the newspapers, magazines, radio, and television? One would think refusing to print critical letters and screening out serious callers or dumping them from radio talk shows would be control enough, but, obviously, it is not.

The United States is a country which openly and unashamedly targets black people for police surveillance, prosecution, incarceration and death. Racism is the fuel which feeds the monster of criminal injustice, making a mockery of any claims of democracy and equal treatment under the law.

Those words are backed up by cold, hard facts. The United States has the dubious distinction of putting both a greater percentage of its population and the largest number of people overall in jails and prison than any other country in the world. The country with 5 percent of the world's population has .25 percent of all prisoners. Black Americans, who make up roughly 13 percent of the population are 38 percent of all those behind bars.

Aaron was arrested for downloading 4 million copyrighted articles from JSTOR, an online archive of academic journals (JSTOR stands for Journal Storage). JSTOR charges libraries as much as $50,000 in yearly subscription fees to access its archive, but at the time, MIT's open-network policy meant any visitor to campus could take advantage of MIT's subscription privileges by using a guest login. Even so, Aaron was charged with excessive and unauthorized access to the university's network under the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act (CFAA). United States Attorney Carmen Ortiz, in the midst of a prosecutorial tear that would lead the Globe to name her 2011's Bostonian of the Year, held up Aaron's indictment as a warning to hackers everywhere: "Stealing is stealing whether you use a computer command or a crowbar, and whether you take documents, data, or dollars," she said at the time. "It is equally harmful to the victim whether you sell what you have stolen or give it away." In fact, Aaron faced stiffer maximum penalties than if he had used a crowbar: 35 years in prison and a fine of up to $1 million.

Normally the host crustaceans would remove any foreign particles or organisms that get caught up in their brood pouch or egg mass, but by disguising itself as an egg, C. inflatus and its relatives can stay there undisturbed. And while its appearance seems comical to us, it is seriously bad news for its host because nicothoid copepods are egg-eaters - they have a syringe-like mouthpart with which they puncture their host's eggs and suck out their contents.

Special agents of the FBI arrested a Monmouth County man at his home this morning after discovering alleged images of child sexual abuse on his computer, U.S. Attorney Paul J. Fishman announced.

Layne Bracht, 31, of Highlands, New Jersey, is charged by complaint with one count of possessing child pornography. He made his initial court appearance today before U.S. Magistrate Judge Lois H. Goodman in Trenton federal court and was remanded without bail.

According to documents filed in this case and statements made in court:

On Oct. 28, 2013, Bracht allegedly distributed on the Internet via peer-to-peer file-sharing software, through which other users had access, a video and images depicting child sexual abuse. Special agents of the FBI executed a search warrant this morning at his residence in Highlands, seizing digital evidence that contained numerous videos and images depicting child sexual abuse, including material involving prepubescent minors and sadistic or masochistic conduct. The digital evidence seized included three files previously downloaded from Bracht by law enforcement agents working in an undercover capacity on the peer-to-peer network.

In 2006, Bracht was arrested and charged with possession of child pornography, a charge to which he subsequently pleaded guilty. On April 2, 2008, U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Irenas sentenced Bracht to 30 months in prison to be followed by five years of supervised release. As a previously convicted sex offender, Bracht faces a mandatory minimum penalty of 10 years in prison, a maximum potential penalty of 20 years in prison, and a $250,000 fine if convicted of the possession of fense.

U.S. Attorney Fishman credited special agents of the FBI's Child Exploitation Task Force, under the direction of Special Agent in Charge Aaron T. Ford in Newark, and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, under the direction of Acting Prosecutor Christopher Gramiccioni, with the investigation leading to today's arrest.

The government is represented by Assistant U.S. Attorney Fabiana Pierre-Louis of the U.S. Attorney's Office Criminal Division in Trenton.

After a series of investigations in the US and Europe, we learned that Google had used its Street View cars to carry out a covert -- and certainly illegal -- espionage operation on a global scale, siphoning loads of personally identifiable data from people's Wi-Fi connections all across the world. Emails, medical records, love notes, passwords, the whole works -- anything that wasn't encrypted was fair game. It was all part of the original program design: Google had equipped its Street View cars with surveillance gear designed to intercept and vacuum up all the wireless network communication data that crossed their path. An FCC investigation showing that the company knowingly deployed Street View's surveillance program, and then had analyzed and integrated the data that it had intercepted.

Most disturbingly, when its Street View surveillance program was uncovered by regulators, Google pulled every crisis management trick in the book to confuse investors, dodge questions, avoid scrutiny, and prevent the public from finding out the truth. The company's behavior got so bad that the FCC fined it for obstruction of justice.

The investigation in Street View uncovered a dark side to Google. But as alarming as it was, Google's Street View wiretapping scheme was just a tiny experimental program compared Google's bread and butter: a massive surveillance operation that intercepts and analyzes terabytes of global Internet traffic every day, and then uses that data to build and update complex psychological profiles on hundreds of millions of people all over the world -- all of it in real time. You've heard about this program. You probably interact with it every day. You call it Gmail.

The cold temperatures over the central U.S. will be moving into the eastern third of the country on Tuesday behind a strong cold front that is exiting into the Atlantic. The cold temperatures with the gusty winds will result in dangerously cold wind chills over most of the Eastern Seaboard. Meanwhile, the dangerously cold temperatures across the nation's heartland will begin a slow moderation.

United States Attorney Thomas G. Walker announced that yesterday in federal court, United States District Judge Louise W. Flanagan sentenced Nathaniel Beltran Grinstead, 37, to 300 months' imprisonment, followed by a lifetime of supervised release.

A federal grand jury returned a criminal indictment on May 1, 2012. On February 12, 2013, Grinstead pled guilty to one count of manufacturing/producing child pornography.

According to the investigation, on October 24, 2011, the Morrisville, North Carolina Police Department received information from school officials regarding several incidents of sexual abuse. Evidence from a cell phone and home computer seized at Grinstead's residence revealed images of the sexual abuse of minors.

Information is power. But like all power, there are those who want to keep it for themselves. The world's entire scientific and cultural heritage, published over centuries in books and journals, is increasingly being digitized and locked up by a handful of private corporations. Want to read the papers from many of the most famous results of the sciences? You'll need to pay enormous amounts to publishers like Reed Elsevier.

There are those struggling to change this. The Open Access Movement has fought valiantly to ensure that scientists do not sign their copyrights away but instead ensure their work is published on the Internet, under terms that allow anyone access it. But even under the best scenarios, their work will only apply to things published in the future. Everything up until now will have been lost.

That is too high a price to pay. Forcing academics to pay money to read the work of their colleagues? Scanning entire libraries but only allowing the folks at Google to read them? Providing scientific articles to those at elite universities in the First World, but not to children in the Global South? It's outrageous and unacceptable.

"I agree," many say, "but what can we do? The companies hold the copyrights, they make enormous amounts of money by charging for access, and it's perfectly legal there's nothing we can do to change them."

But there is something we can, something that's already being done: we can fight back.

Those with access to these resources students, librarians, scientists you have been given a privilege. You get to feed at this banquet of knowledge while the rest of the world is locked out. But you need not indeed, morally, you cannot keep this privilege for yourselves. You have a duty to share it with the world. And you have trading passwords with colleagues, filling download requests for friends.

Meanwhile, those who have been locked out are not standing idly by. You have been sneaking through holes and climbing over fences, liberating the information locked up by the publishers and sharing them with your friends.

But all of this action goes on in the dark, hidden underground. It's called stealing or piracy, as if sharing a wealth of knowledge were the moral equivalent of plundering a ship and murdering its crew. But sharing isn't immoral it's a moral imperative. Only those blinded by greed would refuse to let a friend make a copy.

Large corporations, of course, are blinded by greed. The laws under which they operate require it their shareholders would revolt at anything less. And the politicians they have bought off back them, passing laws giving them the exclusive power to decide who can make copies.

There is no justice in following unjust laws. It's time to come into the light and, in the grand tradition of civil disobedience, declare our opposition to this private theft of public culture.

We need to take information, wherever it is stored, make our copies and share them with the world. We need to take stuff that's out of copyright and add it to the archive. We need to buy secret databases and put them on the Web. We need to download scientific journals and upload them to file sharing networks. We need to fight for Guerilla Open Access.

With enough of us, around the world, we'll not just send a strong message opposing the privatization of knowledge we'll make it a thing of the past. Will you join us?

In a world emerging from widespread crisis, some regions thrive and have been strengthened whilst others struggle to recover. Unforeseen events affect regions unevenly, presenting at once opportunities and challenges, prosperity and deprivation. How regions emerge from negative or positive shocks depends on their capacity to learn from their own experiences and from that of others, as we as their ability to adapt to new environments in a global economy.

Thirty-five rare guitars that illustrate the early history of the instrument in America have gone on view at The Metropolitan Museum of Art. Drawn from the Museum's own holdings as well as from the Martin Guitar Museum in Nazareth, Pennsylvania, and several private collections, Early American Guitars: The Instruments of C. F. Martin traces the birth of the American guitar by shedding light on the contributions of Christian Frederick Martin, a German immigrant who invented a uniquely American form of the guitar in the first half of the 19th century. The exhibition highlights the largest collection of instruments by this renowned maker ever to be displayed publicly, including the earliest known guitar signed by Martin, the earliest established guitar with his famed X-braced construction, and several extraordinary decorated examples of his work.
